

This chapter more than any other reminded me of procedural dramas with a focus on cyber security like CSI: Cyber. I can't read the name of problem like 'over the shoulder attack' or 'man in the middle' without picturing Agent Avery Ryan explain it in simple terms to the audience. Honestly, it was a combination of various procedural dramas with a tech person that made me choose my major. That may have been a mistake as this major is not as entertaining as TV made it seem, shockingly.